OCS Privacy Policy

Your privacy is important to us. Oberlin Community Services is committed to protecting your privacy and creating a safe and secure online environment for anyone who visits our website. Our site host collects cookies to track usage data but does not collect any personally identifiable information. If you choose to request assistance through our website, you may be asked to supply personally identifiable information (such as name, address, or phone numbers) on a secured form. We only collect information that we consider appropriate; it is your right to refuse to provide information at any time. We do not share personal, identifying information with any individuals, businesses, or government entities.
